

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. SONGS OF SEVEN.

Seven times One.

EXULTATION.

THERE 'S no dew left on the daisies and clover,
There's no rain left in heaven:

I've said my "seven times" over and over,
Seven times one are seven.

I am old, so old, I can write a letter;

My birthday lessons are done;

The lambs play always, they know no better;

They are only one times one.

O moon! in the night I have seen you sailing
And shining so round and low;
You were bright! ah bright! but your light is failing,—
You are nothing now but a bow.

You moon, have you done something wrong in heaven
That God has hidden your face?

I hope if you have you will soon be forgiven,

O velvet bee, you're a dusty fellow, You've powdered your legs with gold!

And shine again in your place.

O brave marsh marybuds, rich and yellow, Give me your money to hold!

. • • .

"The lambs play always, they know no better; They are only one times one."

O columbine, open your folded wrapper,
Where two twin turtle-doves dwell!

O cuckoopint, toll me the purple clapper That hangs in your clear green bell!

And show me your nest with the young ones in it;

I will not steal them away;

I am old! you may trust me, linnet, linnet, —

I am seven times one to-day.

Seven times Two.

ROMANCE.

YOU bells in the steeple, ring, ring out your changes,
How many soever they be,
And let the brown meadow-lark's note as he ranges
Come over, come over to me.

Yet bird's clearest carol by fall or by swelling No magical sense conveys,

And bells have forgotten their old art of telling The fortune of future days.

"Turn again, turn again," once they rang cheerily, While a boy listened alone;

Made his heart yearn again, musing so wearily

All by himself on a stone.

Poor bells! I forgive you; your good days are over, And mine, they are yet to be;

No listening, no longing shall aught, aught discover: You leave the story to me.

The foxglove shoots out of the green matted heather, Preparing her hoods of snow;

She was idle, and slept till the sunshiny weather:

O, children take long to grow!

İ

"I wait for my story — the birds cannot sing it, Not one, as he sits on the tree."

I wish, and I wish that the spring would go faster,

Nor long summer bide so late;

And I could grow on like the foxglove and aster, For some things are ill to wait.

I wait for the day when dear hearts shall discover,

While dear hands are laid on my head,

"The child is a woman, the book may close over, For all the lessons are said."

I wait for my story — the birds cannot sing it,

Not one, as he sits on the tree;

The bells cannot ring it, but long years, O bring it!

Such as I wish it to be.

LOVE.

LEANED out of window, I smelt the white clover,
Dark, dark was the garden, I saw not the gate;
"Now, if there be footsteps, he comes, my one lover—
Hush, nightingale, hush! O, sweet nightingale, wait
Till I listen and hear
If a step draweth near,
For my love he is late!

٠ . ; ; .

"The skies in the darkness stoop nearer and nearer,
A cluster of stars hangs like fruit in the tree,
The fall of the water comes sweeter, comes clearer:
To what art thou listening, and what dost thou see?

Let the star-clusters grow,
Let the sweet waters flow,
And cross quickly to me.

"You night moths that hover where honey brims over From sycamore blossoms, or settle or sleep; You glowworms, shine out, and the pathway discover To him that comes darkling along the rough steep.

Ah, my sailor, make haste, For the time runs to waste, And my love lieth deep—

"Too deep for swift telling; and yet, my one lover,

I've conned thee an answer, it waits thee to-night."

• -. ...

"I leaned out of window, I smelt the white clover, Dark, dark was the garden, I saw not the gate.

By the sycamore passed he, and through the white clover,

Then all the sweet speech I had fashioned took flight;

But I'll love him more, more

Than e'er wife loved before,

Be the days dark or bright.

Seven times Four.

MATERNITY.

HEIGH-HO! daisies and buttercups,

Fair yellow daffodils, stately and tall!

When the wind wakes how they rock in the grasses,

And dance with the cuckoo-buds slender and small!

Here's two bonny boys, and here's mother's own lasses,

Eager to gather them all.

"Mother shall thread them a daisy chain; Sing them a song of the pretty hedge sparrow."

Heigh-ho! daisies and buttercups!

Mother shall thread them a daisy chain;

Sing them a song of the pretty hedge-sparrow,

That loved her brown little ones, loved them full fain;

Sing, "Heart, thou art wide though the house be but narrow,"—

Heigh-ho! daisies and buttercups,

Sweet wagging cowslips, they bend and they bow;

A ship sails afar over warm ocean waters,

And haply one musing doth stand at her prow.

O bonny brown sons, and O sweet little daughters,

Maybe he thinks on you now!

Sing once, and sing it again.

Heigh-ho! daisies and buttercups,

Fair yellow daffodils, stately and tall!

A sunshiny world full of laughter and leisure,

And fresh hearts unconscious of sorrow and thrall!

Send down on their pleasure smiles passing its measure,

God that is over us all!

WIDOWHOOD.

I SLEEP and rest, my heart makes moan
Before I am well awake;

"Let me bleed! O let me alone,
Since I must not break!"

For children wake, though fathers sleep
With a stone at foot and at head:
O sleepless God, forever keep,
Keep both living and dead!

- I lift mine eyes, and what to see

 But a world happy and fair!

 I have not wished it to mourn with me,—

 Comfort is not there.
- O what anear but golden brooms,
 And a waste of reedy rills!
 O what afar but the fine glooms
 On the rare blue hills!
- I shall not die, but live forlore—

 How bitter it is to part!

 O to meet thee, my love, once more!

 O my heart, my heart!

"O what anear but golden brooms, And a waste of reedy rills!"

No more to hear, no more to see!

O that an echo might wake

And waft one note of thy psalm to me

Ere my heart-strings break!

I should know it how faint soe'er,And with angel voices blent;O once to feel thy spirit anear,I could be content!

Or once between the gates of gold,

While an angel entering trod,

But once—thee sitting to behold

On the hills of God!

GIVING IN MARRIAGE.

To bear, to nurse, to rear,

To watch, and then to lose:

To see my bright ones disappear,

Drawn up like morning dews;

To bear, to nurse, to rear,

To watch, and then to lose:

. . 1 •

This have I done when God drew near Among his own to choose.

To hear, to heed, to wed,

And with thy lord depart

In tears that he, as soon as shed,

Will let no longer smart.—

To hear, to heed, to wed,

This while thou didst I smiled,

For now it was not God who said,

"Mother, give ME thy child."

O fond, O fool, and blind,

To God I gave with tears;

But when a man like grace would find,

My soul put by her fears.

O fond, O fool, and blind,

God guards in happier spheres;

That man will guard where he did bind

Is hope for unknown years.

"To hear, to heed, to wed,

To hear, to heed, to wed,

Fair lot that maidens choose,

Thy mother's tenderest words are said,

Thy face no more she views;

Thy mother's lot, my dear,

She doth in naught accuse;

Her lot to bear, to nurse, to rear,

To love—and then to lose.

LONGING FOR HOME.

I.

A SONG of a boat:—

There was once a boat on a billow:

Lightly she rocked to her port remote,

And the foam was white in her wake like snow,

And her frail mast bowed when the breeze would blow,

And bent like a wand of willow.

II.

I shaded mine eyes one day when a boat
Went curtseying over the billow,
I marked her course till a dancing mote
She faded out on the moonlit foam,
And I stayed behind in the dear loved home;
And my thoughts all day were about the boat,
And my dreams upon the pillow.

III.

I pray you hear my song of a boat,

For it is but short:—

My boat, you shall find none fairer afloat,

In river or port.

Long I looked out for the lad she bore,
On the open desolate sea,

And I think he sailed to the heavenly shore,

For he came not back to me—

Ah me!

"There is the home where my thoughts are sent,

The only home for me—

Ah me!"

		ļ

IV.

A song of a nest:—

There was once a nest in a hollow:

Down in the mosses and knot-grass pressed,

Soft and warm, and full to the brim.

Vetches leaned over it purple and dim,

With buttercup buds to follow.

v.

I pray you hear my song of a nest,

For it is not long:—

You shall never light, in a summer quest

The bushes among—

Shall never light on a prouder sitter,

A fairer nestful, nor ever know

A softer sound than their tender twitter,

That wind-like did come and go.

VI.

I had a nestful once of my own,

Ah happy, happy I!

Right dearly I loved them: but when they were grown

They spread out their wings to fly.

O, one after one they flew away

Far up to the heavenly blue,

To the better country, the upper day,

And—I wish I was going too.

VII.

I pray you, what is the nest to me,

My empty nest?

And what is the shore where I stood to see

My boat sail down to the west?

Can I call that home where I anchor yet,

Though my good man has sailed?

Can I call that home where my nest was set,

Now all its hope hath failed?

Nay, but the port where my sailor went,

And the land where my nestlings be:

There is the home where my thoughts are sent,

The only home for me—

Ah me
